ABOUT THE PLACE

Chopta is the prettiest spot on the Ukhimath Chamoli road that connects Kedarnath with Badrinath via a clearly more picturesque, somewhat shorter route. This sleepy little place, 35km up from Ukhimath, is really just a bend in a very narrow, thickly forested mountain road. It's the quaintest place you are likely to see en route, along with the famed bugyals (meadows) of the state peeking through towering trees, framed by snowy mountains in the distance. Chopta is the springboard for a 5km trek to Chandrashila Peak and Tungnath – one of the Panch Kedar (sacred Shiva temples) in Garhwal, including Kedarnath, Rudranath, Madmaheshwar, and Kalpeshwar.

COMMON Q & A

Q-what is the male to female ratio and what is the size of the group?

A- we can only tell this one day before trip departure as the booking is going on so the exact figure fluctuates accordingly

Q-What is the name of Camps

A-there is no camp name as mentioned in itinerary the places where we will stay ,we will use our own camps there.

Q-if we dont want to do deoriental trek and want to stay at chopta and explore 'BunkerHouse' can we stay there ?

A-due to security reasons we can't allow this, it is against the policy of our trek
