	Acciimatization	huinsara lake's reputation precedes itself for its beauty. The small and pristine lake lies within a vast meadow, alpine vegetation and rhododendron bushes. There is innumerable variety of alpine flowers growing around the lake. The river Supin is situated 100 meters lake, next to a ridge. It is the perfect place to play games with our trek mates, read a good book or just sit quietly to soak in nature. We can also spend the day exploring nearby places. One can trek towards the Banderpunch glacier or Kyarkoti which is the base. Kalanag and Dumdar Kandi pass. We return to the camp in the evening.

7	Day 6 - Ruinsara lake to Odari (4,100 m)- 4-5 hours Trek	We start the day early so as to reach our destination before afternoon. We descend down to the shallow river bed, cross over to the bank and walk uphill to another beautiful meadow – Thanga. This meadow also offers awe-inspiring views of the seemingly omnipotent Swargarohini ranges. Kyarkoti valley lies towards the left. We soon reach Odari. The word 'Odari' means a naturally made cave rock has a mythological story associated with it. It is believed that Bali, Hanuman's brother, had stayed here for one night. Here too we have evidence of the rare Himalayan brown bear. We camp below Bali Pass along a glacial moraine. This is one of the best locations with the valley below and the Pass behind us. The temperatures at night tend to go to sub-zero degrees. Camping at this altitude is an experience which very few treks offer.
8	Day 7 - Odari (4,100 m) to upper Dhamni (4,000 m) via Bali pass (4,900 m)- 7-8 hours	This day of crossing Bali Pass too begins very early. We strive to reach the summit by 8am. The trail heads down south, over a ridge short but steep climb up to the Pass. A lot of glacial scree will be encountered here. Time taken to reach the top ranges from 45 minutes and a half hour. Once we reach the top, we behold the Yamunotri valley for the first time. The view is breath-taking. We see hints of Saptarishi Kund, which is the origin of river Yamuna. We also get to witness the Banderpunch peaks from the top of the Pass. The peaks Dayara Bugyal, Barua Top and Dokrani Bamak are visible too. We then descend carefully via a connecting ridge and reach the camp.
